What Is the Opportunity Facing Us, and How Will We Respond? - Medallion Ballroom

Elizabeth Mitchell, President and CEO, Network for Regional Healthcare Improvement (NRHI), will set the stage for our ongoing need for payment reform, and the wisdom of adopting a multi-stakeholder and regional approach to this transformation. There will be 20 minutes for Q&A with the audience and Elizabeth.

Speaker: Elizabeth Mitchell, President and CEO, Network for Regional Healthcare Improvement (NRHI)

9:20am - Break

9:30am A Conversation with CMS: How Will MACRA Improve Health, Health Care and Costs, and Why is Local Collaboration an Imperative? - Medallion Ballroom

The recent MACRA legislation was passed with bipartisan support and will be implemented under the guidance of leaders including Mai Pham, MD, Chief Innovation Officer, Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS). Dr. Pham will provide a brief primer on the nuts and bolts of MACRA, and will then engage in a conversation with Elizabeth Mitchell to talk about CMS' vision, what pieces of the puzzle are in place, and what remains to be created. They will talk about how federal policy is implemented at the local level, and what this means for Kentucky and Southern Indiana. There will be 30 minutes for Q&A with the audience.

Speakers: Elizabeth Mitchell, NRHI and Mai Pham, MD, Chief Innovation Officer, Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS)

10:50am - Break and Network with Exhibitors

11:10am How Is MACRA Playing Out So Far in Markets Across the Country? A National Perspective - Medallion Ballroom

Different regions and stakeholders throughout the country are responding in a variety of ways to the January 1, 2017 launch of MACRA, also referred to as the Quality Payment Program. Elizabeth Mitchell and Sanne Magnan, former CEO of a regional health improvement collaborative in Minnesota, will share common threads, key concerns, and unique approaches being taken in anticipation of this date, including a list of critical questions communities in Kentucky and Indiana should consider. Through their insights, they will set the stage for the afternoon's breakout sessions.

Speakers: Elizabeth Mitchell, NRHI and Sanne Magnan, MD, Former CEO, Institute for Clinical Systems Improvement

12:00pm - Lunch in the Grand Ballroom, 10th Floor - Exhibit Hall Open in Ballroom

1:00pm - First Set of Break Out Sessions

2 Simultaneously Facilitated Breakouts: Participants will choose between two sessions: one that will focus on the employer perspective and one on the payer/plan perspective.

Session 1A. Employers: Medallion Ballroom D, E, F

A panel of employers will share how MACRA is relevant to their companies and the steps they are taking – or plan to take – to better position their employees for higher value health care. This session will result in the top five “plays” that employers should consider making in the next few months related to MACRA and their value-based purchasing arrangements with insurers or directly with providers.

Moderator: Elizabeth Mitchell, President & CEO, NRHI
Panelist: Diana Han, MD, Chief Medical Officer, Global Medical Director, GE Home and Business Solutions, a Haier Company
Panelist: Deanna Hall, RN, Manager, Corporate Health and Wellness, LG&E and KU Energy, LLC
Panelist: Todd Bradon, Director of Health & Safety, UPS Worldport

Session 1B. Payers: Medallion Ballroom C

A panel of payers will share how their contracting arrangements with providers will be changing and how they will be engaging in new ways with other stakeholders in order to advance APMs. This session will result in the top five plays for insurers in Kentucky and Southern Indiana over the next 6 months.

Moderator: Sanne Magnan, MD, former CEO, Institute for Clinical Systems Improvement
Panelist: Don Lovasz, President and CEO, KentuckyOne Health Partners
Panelist: Mike Funk, Director, National Networks at Humana
Panelist: Thomas James III, MD, FACP, FAAP, Chief Medical Officer, Baptist Health Plan and Baptist Health Community Care

2:30pm - Second Set of Break Out Sessions

2 Simultaneously Facilitated Breakouts: Participants will choose between two sessions: one that will focus on the provider perspective and one on the consumer or patient perspective.

Session 2A. Providers: Medallion Ballroom C

A panel of providers from different specialties and types of practices will share how they are preparing for alternative payment arrangements. They will discuss the information they need from employers and payers to take greater accountability for not only quality of care but cost. This session will result in the top five plays over the next six months for primary care providers and specialists in Kentucky and Southern Indiana.

Moderator: Trudi Matthews, Managing Director, Kentucky Regional Extension Center, University of Kentucky

Panelist: Steve Hester, MD, System Senior Vice President and Chief Medical Officer, Norton Healthcare

Panelist: Gary Crump, MD, FACR, President, Rheumatology Associates

Session 2B Consumers: Medallion Ballroom D

A panel of consumers will share their perspective on payment reform and what really matters for families, employees and tax payers. They will discuss the information they need from employers and payers to take greater accountability for greater health and smarter engagement with the health care system. This session will result in the top five plays for consumers and families in the next six months.

Moderator: Dianne Hasselman, Executive Director of Federal Programs, NRHI

Panelist: Emily Beauregard, MPH, Executive Director, Kentucky Voices for Health

Panelist: Kristin Celesnik Hennette, BS, Health Information Technology Specialist, will be representing Qsource

Panelist: Cara Stewart, Health Law Fellow, Kentucky Equal Justice Center

3:30pm - Break and Transition to Closing Session - Medallion Ballroom C/D/E/F

3:40pm - Closing Plenary: Where Does Kentucky Go From Here?

Randa Deaton and Teresa Coutts will present the "best plays" gathered from the breakout sessions for Kentucky and the surrounding regions. They will describe upcoming MACRA Playbook events in Kentucky and how the collaborative plans to advance the best plays.
